

Coal Operators Within Rights in Draining Mine Water Into Indian Creek, Judge Van Swearingen Holds

Court Releases Injunction Against 29 Companies in Valley.

APPEAL WILL BE TAKEN

Le. County. Opinion If Is Set Forth That Law Permits Gravity Flow of Mine Water Into Stream and That It Is Up to Plaintiffs to Purify It.

In a lengthy opinion, and decree handed down this morning, Judge Van Swearingen has released an injunction asked by the Mountain Water Supply Company, the Duquesne Water Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to restrain 29 coal operators in the Indian Creek Valley from draining subterranean water into Indian Creek. The decree, however, permits the water supply of the plaintiffs companies.

The court held that the mine owners could permit the water from mines to flow by gravity into Indian Creek when that stream provided the natural drainage for the watershed and that it is incumbent on the water companies to receive the water flowing into the creek and into the storage reservoir of the plaintiffs and purify it for whatever use it is intended.

The decision of the court is the conclusion of the first phase of the battle of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and its subsidiary water companies on one side and the coal operators, who represent many millions, on the other. The case will be appealed to the higher courts. This has been the understanding from the beginning of the litigation.

Testimony in the case was taken last August, at which time there was an array of noted lawyers on each side, the State, too, being represented. A number of years ago the Mountain Water Supply Company constructed a large storage reservoir four miles up the valley from Indian Creek. Water is furnished the Pennsylvania Railroad for engine use. Large quantities are furnished also to the Wheeling and Water Company, at Wheeling, W. Va., and to the Duquesne Water Company of Scottsdale, Pa., which is a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The construction of the water supply system antedated the coal development in the Indian Creek Valley by several years. Since the beginning of the World War, the Pennsylvania Railroad has gradually increased the flow of subterranean water from the mines has increased until it menaces the Pennsylvania's big system, in which millions have been invested.

According to testimony given during the hearing, the Pennsylvania and its subsidiaries have $11,461,411 invested in the water supply system, reported as follows: Mountain Water Supply Company, $3,252,075; Duquesne Water Company, $60,666; Pennsylvania Railroad Company, $8,148,670.

Testimony offered by the defense showed that there are 40,000 acres of coal in the valley, one-half of which is in the hands of operating companies. Values range from $50 an acre for a low grade coal to $200 for a high grade coal, which is being developed.

Christmas Weather Is Warmest in Many Years

Yesterday was the warmest Christmas in many years. The maximum temperature reached 50 degrees and many doffed their overcoats during the early part of the afternoon. The warm day followed a mild night and the early promise of the weather man for snow was blighted. The official prognosticator saw his error late Saturday, after having predicted a white Christmas, and reversed his opinion, saying spring-like weather would prevail.

Although many who desired a snow to make it seem "more Christmas-like" were disappointed, hundreds took advantage of the warm day for motoring and making calls. The thoroughfares were jammed during both afternoon and evening hours.

At the Elks home approximately 1,600 kiddies were guests of the lodge. A Christmas tree had been erected in the big hall and the children thoroughly enjoyed themselves, each being given a treat. The crowd began to gather early and although the hour set for the gathering was 2 o'clock, scores were standing outside shortly after 1 o'clock.

City meat markets sold out of porks and none could be procured late Saturday. Late in the afternoon only the largest sizes, both alive and dressed, were available. These were disposed of before the evening crowd gathered.

A jam of buyers seldom equaled here through the streets and stores Saturday night. Double header service of the street car lines was continued until midnight and hundreds came in automobiles. Parking space was at a premium but the police force managed to keep the traffic moving rapidly enough to avoid congestion.

Families where the baskets were left ranged from one to 13 members.

No count has yet been made of the money contributed through the potlucks maintained on the streets during the week, but it is believed to be close to the $700 mark.

On Thursday evening the usual Christmas treat and entertainment for the poor children of the city will be held at the hall.

Woman May Die After Being Hit By Automobile

Mrs. Mary Garlick Run Down Near Scene of Death of M. J. Tulley.

Steps Backward Onto Road While Waiting for Trolley Car and Driver of Automobile Is Unsuccessful in Effort to Avoid Hitting Her.

As a result of injuries received Christmas evening about 6:30 o'clock, by being struck by an automobile near Pickett's stop in Brookdale, Mrs. Mary Garlick, 41 years old, wife of Hansen Garlick of Liberty Crossing, Pa., is now in a critical condition at the Cottage State Hospital. She is suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull and crushed ribs. She has been unconscious practically all the time since going there, but asked for her father this morning.

The car which struck her was driven by Frank Cuneo of 23 East Third avenue. The accident occurred near where M. J. Tulley, road supervisor of Dunbar township, was killed about 10 days ago. The woman, her husband, a sister, Mrs. Walter S. Slater, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Garlick, were waiting for the West Penn street car when the accident occurred.

Mrs. A. L. Cuneo, an occupant of the machine, said Mrs. Garlick unexpectedly stepped backward onto the road and that Cuneo, at the wheel, turned sharply to avoid striking her, but too late. The machine was brought to a stop within a few feet. The injured woman was brought here in the Cuneo car and after first aid treatment by the office of a physician was taken to the Cottage State Hospital.

In the automobile, in addition to Mrs. A. L. Cuneo and Frank Cuneo, were three children and a sister of Mrs. Cuneo, all of Connellsville.

In another accident along the same road, near the Greek Catholic Church at Leisegang No. 1, Regis Riley, 15 years old, suffered a fracture of the right collarbone and lacerations of the scalp. The accident occurred Saturday morning.

The boy had placed a sack of potatoes on his shoulder from the rear of a truck preparatory to carrying the load into a nearby store. An 18-pound West Penn car, operated by Motorman A. H. Fogle of Wheeling, passed by and struck the sack. The contents of the sack fell on the boy's head in such a manner that his injuries resulted. He was taken to the Cottage State Hospital.

Entertainments In Churches Draw Large Audiences

Christmas entertainments in the churches of Connellsville drew large audiences Sunday and Monday. Rev. E. H. Stevens, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said the performance of the children in the entertainment given there was the finest he had seen in 22 years in the ministry. "Connellsville boys and girls did well," he commented.

It was necessary to bring chairs from other departments to accommodate the crowd in the auditorium and balcony.

The sacred cantata, "The Light Is Come," given by the United Brethren choir and Sunday School Sunday evening, was largely attended and was thought by many to have been the best one they have ever given. Long before the time to begin every seat in taken and it was necessary to place chairs in the aisles to accommodate the members. Many persons stood throughout the performance. The Bethlehem scene background, which entirely covered the back of the platform together with the clever lighting effects, added much to the performance.

The church choir visited a number of the members' homes at midnight and sang Christmas carols returning to the church at 2 A. M., where each member was given a treat.

At the Christian Church the choir rendered special music at the morning service, including a cantata. Pastor Charles Edgar Thomas, assisted by Mrs. H. T. Mason of the orchestra in the accompaniment. In the evening there was a playlet, "Santa Claus on Strike," in charge of Mrs. Roy B. Otto, Miss Margaret Dahl and Mrs. Oliver P. Moser. The Sunday School Christmas, directed by Byron Porter, played.

Former Kaiser Cannot Collect Bond Interest

By Associated Press. BRUSSELS, Dec. 26.—The decision of the lower Belgian courts that former Emperor William has no right to collect interest on British bonds has been sustained by the Court of Appeal in a decision handed down today. The court ordered a Brussels exchange broker to refund to the British bank involved several million francs paid on coupons which the bank later learned belonged to the ex-kaiser.

The ownership came to light when the British government discovered that the emperor's agent had been collecting interest on the coupons. The Dutch bank figuring in this case, said to be one of several through which the former emperor sent coupons to be cashed, so that traces of their origin might be lost, was exonerated as an innocent party.

EUGENE MORGAN BURNED TO DEATH NEAR MORGANTOWN

In a fire believed to have followed football play, Eugene Morgan, 48 years old, of Connellsville, was burned to death in the cook house of the Navy or Coal Company at Scotia Run, near Morgantown, W. Va., shortly after midnight Saturday. State police issued a statement saying they believed the man had been murdered for his money and then the shanty set on fire to hide the crime.

The charred remains were found in the ruins early Sunday morning. Three other employees sleeping in the built house section of the burning building were carried to safety.

The origin of the flames is a mystery. As far as is known there was no fire in the structure. It is supposed that Morgan either fell asleep in his bunk with a cigar in his mouth or that the place was burned by incendiaries.

W. E. Moore of the M. B. Stone Company passed the mess shack shortly after midnight and saw no sign of fire then. Twenty minutes later when he stepped out on his back porch he saw the flames and gave the alarm.

The regular cooks were off duty and Morgan was staying there to watch the property. When the fire was discovered the cook house and of the structure was a mass of flames. The building was one story, about 65 feet long. Popular with the miners, he was frequently entrusted with sums of money and, one theory is that he might have had much money on his person, with the fire following robbery.

Morgan was a Spanish War veteran and was cited for bravery in the battle of Manila. He was a member of Uniontown Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and that organization had sent officers to investigate the cause of his death. He was born and reared in Connellsville. He is survived by two brothers, Edward of Mount Braddock and Frank Morgan of Rockwood.

Divorcee Kills Lover; Police Find Flaw in Story

By Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 27.—A woman's story of a quarrel, a shot and her vigil from dusk to dawn over the body of the man she killed was being investigated by the police today.

"I killed my friend," Mrs. Olive Jones, 32 years old, pretty divorcee, announced when she entered police headquarters just after daybreak Monday. She was disheveled, hysterical. The men on duty discounted her statement.

"O, he's dead. I shot him. You'll find him out there on the floor. I left him covered with his own overcoat. I know he's dead. His head moved for hours," she declared.

This was the first intimation, official said, that O. L. Black, sales manager for a Louisville automobile company, had been shot to death last Sunday afternoon in Mrs. Jones' apartment.

Mrs. Jones said she fired in self-defense. According to her account of the tragedy he became angry when he learned her daughter, Clara, 17, was with her and that her divorced husband, C. H. Jones, of Cincinnati, a Louisville taxi driver, had just come to visit his daughter. Black feared, Mrs. Jones declared, that a reconciliation between the couple would be effected.

When Black, who she declared "broke up my home and caused me to get divorced," reached for a pistol on a nearby table she seized the weapon first and fired.

Jones said he would do anything possible to help his former wife. Police investigators declare, however, have been found in the account of the tragedy as given by Mrs. Jones. Black was shot in the back, E. A. Larkin, captain of detectives said. The fact, he said, indicated the victim was not taking the aggressive.

TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 26, 1922.

MAKING CHRISTMAS LAST.

Christmas of 1922 was an exceptionally gratifying one for people in this section. They were able to make single provision to insure the happiness of themselves and families and they helped bring the season's cheer to those who were not circumstanced to do so themselves.The joy of the day was not confined exclusively to an exchange of gifts or the gratification of appetite or selfish desires. Some, of course, did not fully recognize their opportunities or responsibilities in manifesting the spirit of the occasion but the bulk of the people, young and old, did and they are those who derived the most satisfying enjoyment from the observance of the day.Having afforded them such an immense object lesson in the pleasures and joys of being unselfishly generous, the day ought to be held in such vivid remembrance that its influences will extend all through the 52 weeks elapsing between now and the next anniversary of the happy event. This will be possible of accomplishment if we have the same will to be kind, the same readiness to make sacrifices and the same eagerness to render service that we displayed on and for some days in advance of the Day of Days.It is not to be expected that we can be exchanging gifts of material value from day to day—few are positioned to do so even if it were desirable—but we should not consider ourselves to have been so completely bankrupted in the process that made Christmas a bygone day that we have nothing left to distribute until another year has passed and gone.The impulse to true Christian charity, which is the message Christmas brings anew each year, will grow into a habit if we but exercise the virtue to practice it a little every day in our relations to all people. If we do this we will cause Christmas to last all the year and we will be infinitely better equipped to make still more appropriate our next celebration of the day than we will at we begin today to drive its spirit out of our hearts and live and allow selfishness, selfishness, and uncharitableness to take its place.

Happiness Through Work

By R. W. STRAUER, President American Society for Thrifty.It's well to bear in mind that one of the greatest sources of human happiness is work. And this is a truth that could be more widely learned to advantage.For many follow the rule that the more work they can avoid the greater will be their happiness. There is no truth in this. Happiness in idleness is a waste of time. It is a form of selfishness that is as destructive of rightful pleasure as waste of money or waste of health.Work alone brings happiness, because work is creative and unbuild-ing.All the instincts of the human race which have been responsible for humanity's development have found their fulfillment only in work.Every realm of man's activity, whether it be spiritual, mental or physical, human experience has shown that progress has come through work.This does not mean that there is no right place in life for play, or that idleness is not in accordance with good thrift. It is a matter of common sense that life can not be made up entirely of labor. There would be little if any progress in a material way under such conditions, and in the finer things of life, there would be absence of all development.You cannot transform a man into a machine, and get human results.But, within the bounds of the average routine of life, work brings the most satisfying happiness—work that is right, uplifting and helpful.Do not allow an ambition for idleness to spring in your heart. What has this never, under any circumstances, can bring lasting joy. It is not dissimilar to all other unwholesome practices.Happiness through work is one of the fundamentals that can be continually renewed. It is a splendid type of constructive thrift.

No World-Wide Strike

Boston Post

In its action to decline participation in the international conference at The Hague, the American Federation of Labor takes a sound position. This is based upon the fact that such attendance would in effect blind the Federation in advance to the support of the pending resolution of the Home Congresses proposing an international strike in the event of war.This is entirely reasonable and will receive public commendation. As the statement of the American Federation puts it, the proposition looks to a general international strike of the workers of a country in the event of any war, even a defensive war against aggression. As it stands in the form suggested—and indeed, in any other form of involving a similar surrender of independence—it is preposterous and impossible of endorsement by organized labor in this republic.

A BOOK AND A PIP.

Give me a book and my cozy chair and a pipe of old perique And the wind may howl and I shall not care that the night is cold and black.For I'll follow my friend of the plumed page wherever he leads me on I'll follow him back to a vanishing age and the joys of a life that is gone.I'll stand with him on a brigantine with the salt wind in my face I'll hear him about when the whole world is seen and share in the stirring chase.And I'll hear him say as the gulls fly by and round us overhead Every bird up there with its ghastly cry is the soul of a sailor dead.I'll go with him where the pole star glows and the night lights are long I'll go with him to his land of dreams away from the surging throng I'll stand with him on the battle line where the sky with flame turns red.I'll follow the faithful friend of mine wherever he wants to tread Oh, whether it be adventure grim or the calm of a noble mind Or a sea to sail and a ship to trim or a trail of truth to find.
Grant me an hour in my easy chair and a pipe full of old perique And there I'll ever be ready to share that can furnish the joy I seek.

FACTS AND FICTION

Experiences of Connellsville Citizens Are Easily Proven to Be Facts.

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statements from a resident of Connellsville are true. Sayed and compare evidence from Connellsville people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Connellsville endorse Dean's Kidney Pills.

August Rohland, 112 East North alley, Connellsville, says: "About a year ago I had a bad headache. It bothered me all the time and when I stooped over, sharp pains would catch me so that I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys acted too often and the secretions were not normal and burned. Dean's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by a friend and I took just one box which removed all the trouble. I haven't been bothered since, thanks to Dean's Kidney Pills." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Dean's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Rohland had. Foster-McBurr Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.
